Great job, Singamas!

With the surge in COVID-19 cases early this year, Singamas Container Holdings, a subsidiary of PIL, responded swiftly to the urgent call to fight against the pandemic in Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Shanghai Baoshan Pacific Container, a Singamas plant, took up the challenge from the local government to produce and deliver 500 units of containers with 1,100 rooms within two and a half days for quarantine purposes. Currently, Shanghai Baoshan is also involved in the preliminary work of the construction of 1,000 high specification quarantine container units in Shanghai.

Another unit of Singamas, Huizhou Singamas Energy Equipment Co., Ltd took on the task to produce 2,000 quarantine container units for Hong Kong, when they faced an acute shortage of quarantine facilities during its fifth wave of the pandemic early this year.

In fact, both units played a pivotal role in the early stages of the pandemic in 2020. Shanghai Baoshan, together with the Chinese Academy of Sciences, as well as China Customs, produced containerised mobile testing laboratories for several local hospitals and government agencies. For Huizhou Singamas, they produced container units for Penny's Bay Quarantine Camp in Hong Kong. Through their speedy actions, the local medical teams were able to work in safe and reliable environments, enabling them to quickly contain the spread of the virus.

Good job and 加油 (an encouragement term in Chinese), Singamas!
