Cleaning beach in Tanzania

It is heartening to see PIL teams around the world doing their part to inculcate a green mindset among colleagues. On 10 May 2023, as part of the Earth Day initiative, PIL Tanzania office organised a beach cleanup activity at Coco Beach, located in the Oyster Bay area in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania. Being a public beach, it is affected by littering, and pollutants such as plastic bottles and wastes get washed up on the beach from the ocean.

Eight colleagues participated in the cleanup activity, and they managed to collect four large bags of plastic bottles, diapers, broken glass bottles, soda cans and other trash items. During the time spent cleaning up the beach, these colleagues at PIL Tanzania came to realise the importance of taking care of the planet by maintaining environmental hygiene.

Good work PIL Tanzania!

PIL aims to continue to play its part to protect the environment, through encouraging responsible actions by its employees, both on shore and at sea.
